SYNOPSIS

Three survivors of an alien attack have taken refuge in the wreckage of their starship: PETERSON, the ship's female pilot, the CHIEF a weathered veteran and KERRY, a teenage Adept with genetically enhanced psychic abilities.

But their safe haven is falling apart as the ship's systems fail. If something doesn't change soon, all they're going to die.

To make matters worse, they're being hunted by the creatures who destroyed their ship, aliens called RIPPERS who will kill them on sight.

Peterson and the Chief teach Kerry to survive but with opposing goals. The Sergeant is practical, training Kerry to kill while Peterson tries to give her survival skills and a reason to live. In the process they forge a family dynamic. But it can't last.

THEIR HAVEN IS BREACHED BY THE RIPPERS.

The Chief is willing to sacrifice himself to help Peterson and Kerry escape. But as they flee, Peterson learns that Kerry's genetically enhanced abilities are linked to mankind's war with the Rippers. And human science may have created something more dangerous than the alien enemy: Kerry has the potential to become a monster, a genetically engineered killing machine driven by rage. And the virus that created her has infected Peterson.

But because Kerry has grown from what she has learned from Peterson and the Chief, she is able to control and harness her abilities. She takes Peterson and the Chief (whose own transformation has allowed him to survive) and uses the last escape pod to begin a new life as someone and something new.
